In public education and coaching, you mentor, teach and build relationships with students who look to you as the responsible party. This training will:

- Identify decisions and behaviors to avoid
- Discuss communication and the ever-evolving dynamics of student interaction related to phones and social media
- Identify proactive strategies to avoid future issues

This training is appropriate for teachers, walk-on coaches, administrators or any other personnel working with students

Presented by Jacob Houghton of 34th Street Consulting. Jacob is a former administrator, teacher, and coach experienced in training personnel in the areas of risk management, loss prevention and compliance. He has received his Bachelor of Science from BYE and Master of Education from Lamar University
